Quantitative Collaborative
Schedule of Lectures
Spring 2011

February 7
President Terry Sullivan
“The Plural of Anecdote Is Not Data” (2:00-3:00, Minor Hall Auditorium)

February 28
Leonard Wantchekon (Professor of Politics and Economics, New York University)
“The Slave Trade and The Origins of Mistrust” (brown bag lunch)
“Can Informed Deliberation Overcome Clientelism? Experimental Evidence from Benin” (general audience lecture) (Gibson 211)

March 14
Maxim Engers (Professor of Economics, U.Va.)
“Some Models of Private Information in Economics” (brown bag lunch)

April 11
Mick Couper (Research Professor, Survey Research Center, Institute for Social Research, University of Michigan)
“Using Paradata to Understand Measurement Errors in Surveys” (brown bag lunch)
“The Convergence of Quantitative Methods in the Social Sciences” (general audience lecture) (Maury 104)

April 25
David Leblang (Professor of Politics, U.Va.)
“Harnessing the Diaspora: The Political Economy of Expatriate Dual Citizenship” (brown bag lunch)

May 6
Myron Gutmann (Assistant Director of the NSF-SBE Program; Research Professor, Population Studies Center, University of Michigan and Professor, History, University of Michigan)
Title, times, and places TBA

May 13
Workshop and Poster Session

Brown Bag Lunch Sessions will be from 12:00-1:00 (Monroe 120)
General Audience Lectures will be from 4:00-5:00

The Quantitative Collaborative (QC) is a social sciences initiative of the College of Arts and Sciences.